WHAT IS "RUBBER"?

Natural rubber comes from the rubber trees in South America and Asia. Years ago, natural rubber was used to make tires and weather-stripping. The first rubber tires were actually white, but researchers added carbon black to make tires stronger.

D & R Classic rubber is made of synthetic compounds, making a far superior ozone and UV resistant product for your car. Our rubber products are all molded using high heat and high pressure for long life and good looks.

D & R Classic's rubber products usually exceed the qualities, look and feel of your original rubber parts. All the details of the original, the very best compounds, the steel cores, and the latest technologies, produce the highest quality product on the market today.

D & R CLASSIC'S TYPES OF RUBBERS

When comparing brands, select a D & R Classic product. You may not be aware of the quality differences we feature. It is important to note that our products install easily, look exactly like the original parts, seal out the elements and are guaranteed to last. Not all weather-stripping is the same! So here's what you should ask when choosing your next weather-stripping or rubber product.

TOP QUALITY

Our rubber is produced by the leading manufacturers of top quality molded rubber parts and sponge weather-stripping for classic cars!

Compare D & R Classic products to any other manufacturer's and you'll quickly see and feel why our product is superior in performance, durability and composition. We don't cut corners when we offer a replacement item. In fact, we take extra precaution to make you an identical match to the item you need, right down to hand-trimming and assembly, and multiple separate quality control checks. Our pledge is simple. Every weatherstrip product we sell must meet our own high quality standards. We will not compromise.

CLEANING RUBBER

•Rubber contains plasticizers that eventually "evaporate" from rubber, leaving it hardened and cracked. This is a naturally occurring process, but sunlight, chemicals and gasoline, all can shorten its life.

•To give your rubber that new, jet black look, start by cleaning it, using a mild soap and water.

•Follow with a protectant (Armorall) or even a silicone-based aerosol furniture polish (Lemon Pledge) to give your rubber a new, jet black look. Do not spray the protectant directly on the rubber, but apply it to a damp rag first.

•Some rubber will naturally bleed paraffin, which will look like hardened candle wax. Carefully use a solvent to remove any paraffin.

CHECK THE GUARANTEE!

You can be proud to buy our products because they offer the best original guarantee in the business.

D & R Classic maintains one of the largest inventories of quality auto replacement rubber parts, while keeping on the cutting edge of technology, to meet the growing demand for specialty rubber. So trust your classic to the finest rubber money can buy!

- Will I be able to shut my doors and trunk after installation? Or will I have to adjust them continually and still have to slam the door shut?
- Are the parts really molded? Or just cut out of die material?
- Are they made with state-of-the-art material with true sunlight and ozone resistant materials? Or are they just some type of generic rubber that will crack, fade, and peel?
- Are the pins the correct style and color? Or are they something that works for this part and that part?
- Are all the details molded into the parts? Or are their details missing because they are difficult to put in or nonfunctional?
- Are the metal cavities made in one piece? Or are they made of small blocks that add unnecessary flash lines?
